

Issue #9: A Time to Share

Having just finished work for the year as well as learning how to edit home videos on iMovie as a gift to my family, I wanted to take a moment and thank you – my readers – with a moment of reflection on the year 2017.

This was a year of challenge for me personally as I focused on re-energizing my consulting, my writing, and my commitment to getting in better shape in all facets of my life.

It was a challenging year for our state of California, mainly with wildfires that affected so many in both northern and southern parts of the state, including destroying the home of one of my doctor friends and forcing my oldest daughter's college to evacuate (during finals week, no less).

And it was a challenging year for our country, with events that caused me on many a day to just wonder what in the heck is happening...

Through it all, I realize just how fortunate I am to be alive and well, surrounded by family, friends and a fantastic group of clients that allow me to use my skills to help them grow their businesses and practices.

And I'm thankful for all of you that take a few minutes each month to read the Tee Time blog. It's a definite passion of mine to seek and discover new solutions to age-old problems that vex doctors and their dedicated staff members.

I hope that each of you is able to similarly reflect on what is good in your life as well as discover and put to work the talents you've been given.

If you've never experienced the joy of a traditional Christmas Carols sung to the tunes of classic rock, I invite you to click below and listen to December People as they sample Led Zeppelin, The Who, Journey and others that will put a smile in your ears. These musicians all played with some of the big rock bands from the 70s and 80s and they still know how to rock!

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to each and every one of you. Lots of good stuff coming in 2018!
